AUTISM FAMILY

Baby boy, such a joy, you're a dream come true
Our family would not be the same without you!
From sleeping in my arms, to crawling down the hall
And taking your first steps, you know, we love you through it all

You bring our family love and hope and joy
We are privileged to have you
But you're a puzzle little boy
Though it's not easy, together we are stronger
Arm in arm, heart to heart, hand in hand
We'll put the pieces together

Little man, you sometimes can seem distant, and I wonder
When you march to your own beat
Have I failed you as a mother?
I try to read with you or play, but you desire no part.
Can someone help me understand how to reach your heart?

You won't respond to questions
nor look us in the eye,
then suddenly you're screaming and we don't understand why

We sought answers and got labels
Not solutions, to our shock
Now we don't know what to do
Except ask, "Where are you, God?"

He answered quietly, deep within my soul
He designed you for a special plan, and God is in control
Though it's not easy, together we are stronger.
There are friends, we found a family
We're not alone any longer

We found a family of love and hope and friends
Arm in arm, heart to heart, hand in hand
We'll put the pieces together
We're not alone!
